MINISTRY REFLECTION:

a glimpse of God at work in our midst

ConGRADulations

New. New jobs. New school. New teachers. New friends. New house. New church. New roommate. New decisions. New responsibilities. New challenges.

Transitioning into a new season of life at any time can seem like a daunting challenge. We all have seasons of transition, and it is not often that we are as prepared as we would like to be – if at all. The advantage that believers in Jesus Christ have as we transition through the different seasons of life is that we are KNOWN. We are known by our creator who knows the specifics of our past, present, and future steps. With this knowledge we can move forward boldly and courageously.

Today, at FBNO we are sending out graduates of many kinds to many different places. Some are staying close, some are going far away, while others will be somewhere in between. All of them have one thing in common, they are being SENT.

We have been created for community, and as a church family, I challenge us as a body to partner in prayer with those transitioning from one educational milestone to another. At various stages in our lives, we have all needed our arms held up with the prayers from people miles away. Moses had two of his closest community members to physically hold up his arms when he was too weak to do it on his own. Let us fulfill our role as the church family of those moving on to another stage in life. When the future is overwhelming, and transitions are hard, let those we send out always know that they are lifted up in prayer by their church family.

Question marks. They are scary for many of us. For Jesus, they don't exist. He knows how every anxiety, every fear, every next step culminates in the ultimate victory found in Him.

Trey Gibson, Youth Minister

A STORY TO TELL: Women at the Well: Don't Chase Religious Rabbits

The Father is seeking the lost. He is looking for worshipers who will worship him in Spirit—their spirits united with His Spirit through the work of Christ Jesus upon the cross.
